

The first time I saw you, I knew something special would happen

The first time we met, I felt really insecure

The first time you left my house, my stomach kept on aching for a whole night

Even though you drive recklessly, I feel secure next to you sleeping in the car

Even though I am jealous sometimes, I try to chase those feelings away

Even though we lied, every day we trust one another

When you call me, my heart rejoices for your words are so kind

When you make love to me, my body tremors with passion

When we travel together, it is the happiest time of my life

And when you said you wanted to care for me, my heart stopped beating in hope this moment would never end.

For every part of my being loves you with bliss, grateful that I can also care for you.